Commenting on the government reshuffle, Liwa Al-Istiqlal says that Nuri As-Said was seeking a coalition government but has failed because he could not conciliate between his policy and the requirements for a coalition government. That is why he has resorted to this partial reshuffle. Even in this partial reshuffle Premier Nuri As-Said has failed to fill the vacancies of two important portfolios, i.e. the Ministries of Interior and of Foreign Affairs.

The paper concludes that there is one alternative either to persist along the old line or to set up a regime based on the will of the people. (12/26)

According to Al-Alam Al-Arabi, this is not a properly speaking government reshuffle but a kind of "patching". (12/26)

Premier Nuri As-Said has failed in his reshuffle. Among the reasons given by the paper are that he has entrusted responsible portfolios to young elements and that he has three ministers without portfolios while the ones of Interior and of Foreign Affairs remain vacant. (12/26)

THE KOREAN WAR.

Commenting on the Korean war and the wholesale massacres carried out by the Southern Koreans in revenge for their collaboration with the Communists, and which has amounted to 877 people in one month, states that the world facing these facts has to admit that the army which intervened to free the nation, has for its real purpose the destruction of its natural resources. While we condemn these revengful and barbarous acts in modern warfare, we do not ask mercy from the Americans and British and others who are fighting with imperialistic aims but, we would urge the easterners not to involve their countries into the war. The nation that asks for freedom does not naturally wish its country to be destroyed as is the case with Korea. Any war would only involve our country into the same catastrophe as that of the Koreans. Those who are preparing our country for war are committing a crime for they are involving it into destruction.
